It is noteworthy that Tashkent State University of Law, as the largest higher education organization training lawyers in Uzbekistan, demonstrates the high quality of training legal personnel, is recognized by foreign partners and colleagues, and interacts with higher education institutions and scientific institutions around the world, as well as international organizations.

Today, Tashkent State University of Law is opening the door to a new century, and with the opportunities created, we are moving forward with high hopes in the path of science and education.

It is worth noting that in today's rapidly developing era, defining the necessary competencies for future lawyers and training them remains the most important task. Considering the rapid development of digital technologies, the emergence of artificial intelligence, virtual spaces and digital assets that can compete with new technologies and create legal requirements for these fields demands new breed of lawyers who are ready to create the future.

In fact, the main task of the university today is to teach and educate students with foresight, to ensure that they have essential knowledge and up-to-date skills, along with a higher education diploma.

I am certain that our emerging young generation of lawyers will continue to build a bright future and achieve noble goals, and this process begins with our alma mater - Tashkent State University of Law.
